$1.25 Per Year

Bus Line Has No Competition; Fare Rates Increased

The following article, appearing in the Monee Review, last week, shows what happens to the public when any public utility has the field to itself, so that it becomes a monopoly:

"Auto and bus transportation between Chicago Heights and Joliet killed the electric line which connected the two cities. While the line was in operation, the bus line charged the same fare from Matteson to Joliet, 65c. Now that the electric line is defunct and the rails torn up, the bus fare has been raised to $1.05. Previous to the war, it was 40c. People who patronize bus and truck lines may think they are getting even with the steam and electric lines. The time will come, however, when they will wish they had not killed the rail lines."

Frankfort can well attest to the fact that the old traction line was a big asset for that village, not only in good transportation service, but also as a taxpayer. Since this line has been torn up, the village and the township have lost much in taxes, which loss must be made up by other taxpayers of the community.

Mokena M. E. Sunday School Takes Survey

The M. E. church is beginning to show a big awakening spirit. On Sunday another new class was organized for adults. On Friday night of this week Rev. C. L. Hays, of the Central Office of the M. E. Board of Sunday schools, will go over the local Sunday work and will show modern methods of Sunday school work and improvements, and how to attain the question to be decided will be the use of the graded Sunday school lessons.

Another new feature to be tried out at the M. E. church will be the change in the hours of worship for the winter months. Commencing with Sunday, December 3rd, services will be held in the morning at 9:45 o'clock instead of in the evening. A new choir has been organized, and will meet for their first rehearsal at the church on Saturday night at 7 o'clock.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

Mrs. G. A. Kerr, wife of Dr. Kerr of Mokena, underwent an operation at St. Joseph hospital, Joliet, Friday. She is convalescing favorably.

Housing Construction Is Breaking All Records

Two Billion Dollars Invested in New Homes During First Nine Months of 1922—Fireproof Construction Favored—Rents Steady.

The year 1922, despite labor unrest and high prices, is setting a remarkable record in building construction in the United States. In the first nine months, new housing contracts totaled more than during the same period in any previous year of the nation's history. The value of the new homes constructed during that time is in excess of $2,000,000,000 and is 51 per cent greater than the building contracted for during the same period in 1921.

One feature, that investigation of housing construction develops, is the great percentage of new homes now being built by laboring men. Another indicates that substitutes for wood are now used in greater volume. These include steel and other metal frames and fittings, asphalt shingles and roll roofings.

Builders of new houses seem to be taking more to heart the lesson that government officials and conservationists have been driving home for years—the lesson that the timber supply of America must be conserved. And in learning this lesson they have found that not only can substitutes for wood be used to advantage but that these substitutes make for economy, add to the life of the structure and reduce the costs of insurance and maintenance.

Fire Protection Demanded

The reports show that the average builder also is demanding all the fire and cyclone protection he can secure without unduly increasing his costs. If he lives in a section where violent windstorms occur, he is laying a roof that will "stay put." Where he encounters heavy fire risks he is seeking a material that has great fire-resistant qualities. A roofing material of proven merit both from the storm-resistant and the fire-resistant standpoint that is now being most widely used is the asphalt shingle.

Not long ago one of the leading cities in the South was swept by one of the most severe hurricanes ever recorded by the U. S. Weather Bureau. Property to the extent of millions of dollars in value was destroyed or damaged. Buildings were crushed and roofs were ripped off and scattered in every direction, yet in all of the devastated area, despite the 70 mile wind, not one asphalt shingle roof was damaged. Not one shingle was upturned and not a single leak developed. Asphalt shingles are not only waterproof but are impervious to freezing and to the rays of a hot sun.

Havoc wrought by wind storm in the South—Many roofs of fireproof construction withstood the force of the elements, showing the great resistance of such construction to high winds.

The report of the National Board of Fire Underwriters on the recent disaster at Atlanta, Ga., showed that homes roofed with asphalt shingles ably resisted the flames. In some instances, while surrounding homes were destroyed, houses covered with asphalt roofing failed to ignite and remained intact.

Home Owners Increasing

Less than 50 per cent of the American people are homeowners and only 20 per cent of American dwellings come up to the recognized standards. There has never been so great an interest in new dwellings and improvement of houses already built as shown this year. In 1920 there were 11,400,000 home owners in the country. The number has been greatly increased during the intervening two years. There are 13,000,000 home owners in the United States today.

Reports show that there is now no housing shortage in Boston, and rents on residential and business properties are classed as steady; Charleston has a housing problem, but rents are slightly reduced; Dallas has no housing shortage, and the trend of rents for homes is downward; Harrisburg, Pa., is short of homes, although building operations have doubled; Marion, Ohio, has no shortage and rents are stationary; Norfolk has favorable conditions, and some reductions in rent are noted; in Pittsburgh conditions are normal and rents steady; Palm Beach has enough homes, and in Yonkers there is a shortage, with rents holding fast.

NEW LENOX EPWORTH LEAGUE IS SPONSORING COMMUNITY PROGRAM FOR WINTER

The New Lenox Epworth League is working up a community program for the winter, and the first number of the program was given Thursday night, when a movie "The Inside of the Cup," was presented.

Further numbers are planned for, and will no doubt meet with a cordial support from the young people of the community.

"There came a real man to the city's most fashionable church," Shams and hypocrites exposed with merciless vigor. "The Inside of the Cup" is a dramatic picturization of Winston Churchill's celebrated novel. A great entertainment. A great lesson.

Thanksgiving sermon, Sunday morning, by the pastor, Rev. A. W. Hamilton.

Sunday evening, Dr. W. S. Rowe of New York, a World Traveler and Lecturer, will give an Illustrated Travelogue Lecture. All are invited.

December 1, the pastor will give his lecture on "The Romance of California." Don't forget the date.

Mokena Men Have Orland Bazaar Clears $350

Harry F. Mail, Mokena lumber dealer, and Tom Homering figured in an auto accident, Sunday, but were lucky to escape injury. They were driving Mr. Mail's truck, when the machine skidded while on the road near the Hickory creek bridge, south of town, and landed in the ditch. The truck, it is said, was going 57 miles an hour when it skidded.

The chicken supper and bazaar given by the Christ Lutheran church, Wednesday, was a grand success. The supper, commencing at 5 till 8 o'clock, was surely enjoyed by all, it being a bounteous one. There were candy and fancy work booths and two grab-bags. Five quilts were auctioned off—Mr. Louis Nicolli, one; Mrs. Henry Utte, two; Mrs. John Habenicht, one; and Mrs. Louis Nicolli Sr., one. Cakes, pies, aprons, dollies, towels and children's dresses were sold. Mat 63c. Ward Schmiedeke acted as auctioneer. They are planning on giving a bunco party in the near future.

Mrs. Louis Arnold Jr. entertained a number of her friends, Monday afternoon, in honor of her birthday. The afternoon was spent in playing games, prizes being awarded to the winners, after which a dainty luncheon of chicken salad, potato salad, hot biscuits, pickles, olives, cake and coffee were served.

Mrs. John Wagner entertained a few relatives in honor of her birthday, Tuesday evening. Progressive euchre was played. Those capturing the prizes were Harry A. Cox and Mrs. William Cox. A supper of sandwiches, pickles, potato salad, doughnuts, cake and coffee was served by the hostess.

Celebrate 25th Anniversary

About sixty relatives and friends surprised Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Hoffman, of 200 Richards street, at the invitation of their daughter, Mrs. Clarence Olsen, and sons Alfred and Roy Hoffman.

Progressive euchre was played at nine tables. Mrs. Herman Schoop and Mrs. Louis Hoffman made high score. Henry Schmuhl and Mrs. John Knauer received low score. Piano selections of songs of 25 years ago were played.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman were presented with a purse of 25 silver dollars and two bouquets, one with 25 white chrysanthemums and one with 25 white carnations. A midnight luncheon of ice cream and cake was served.

Tinley Park Hunters Bag Ducks

Charles F. Nielsen, Fred Ahrens and a number of other Tinley Park hunters went to Henry, Ill., on a duck hunting expedition, Saturday, returning Monday afternoon. Mr. Nielsen bagged 14 ducks as a record. Another hunting trip is being planned for the near future.

chased tickets, and in that way helped to make their party a success financially.

RAFFLE ITEMS TABOO
The word "raffle" is taboo in all newspaper offices when used in connection with any church, club or picnic affair for the reason that the U. S. Post Office Department strictly prohibits newspapers from printing anything about a raffle as it is considered in the same class as a lottery.

The News-Bulletin receives very many items about winners of raffle prizes, but these items cannot be published and we ask our correspondents not to mention raffles in their news items.

Wabash Will Put On Milk Train Next Monday

The Wabash will put on its milk train again, next Monday, as the result of the many petitions which have been made to the company by patrons along the line asking that this train be restored. This train was annulled in August as a result of the rail and coal strike.

This train was formerly operated between Forest and Chicago, but under the new schedule will run from Decatur to Chicago, a distance of 156 miles. It will be only run on week days. It is scheduled to arrive at Marley at 11:15, arriving in Chicago at 12:15 o'clock. On the return trip, the train leaves Chicago at 4 o'clock, and will be due at Marley at 5:12.

The restoration of this train will be much appreciated by the residents of Manhattan, Marley, New Lenox, Alpine, Orland and other towns along the road.

Since the train was annulled, it was impossible to ship any perishable express matter from Marley, and no passenger service was maintained, so people desiring to go to Chicago had to come to Mokena to take trains on the Rock Island.

Tinley Park R. N. A. Sees Hard Time Effect

The Royal Neighbors gave a hard time party, Saturday evening, Nov. 18, in Andres hall. The hall was filled, and a fine time was reported by all. Nearly all came attired in old clothes, and those that came "dressed up" were fined.

Prizes were awarded to Frank Francis, our local mail carrier, and Mrs. Charles Neilson, who were the two worst "hard time" looking ones present. Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin also were given prizes. A Thanksgiving basket was also disposed of, which contained everything for a large family dinner. The winner of this was Mrs. Charles Miller, formerly Margaret Hopkins, of this place. Sandwiches and coffee were served cafeteria style. The Neighbors wish to thank all those who pur-

Slippery Roads Sends Auto Bus Into Ditch

The roads between Frankfort and Joliet are in a very bad shape, and the busses have had several close calls of serious accidents, when they ran off the road into the ditch. Last Tuesday night, while going to Joliet, the school bus ran off the road into a ditch. Everyone on the bus was severely shaken up, but luckily no one was hurt. A few nights later, the same kind of a mishap occurred, when the bus again ran off the highway, this side of Spencer, and nearly tipped over, due to the wet and slippery road.

People will feel quite relieved when the Michigan Central puts on gasoline motor cars, as was rumored some time ago in Frankfort. There seems to be no action taken in the matter, however. It was reported that some of the leading citizens recently joined together and filed a petition with the Michigan Central, requesting that road to provide some means of transportation. It is not known just what the outcome of this petition will be. It is almost impossible for the older people to ride on the busses on account of the rough riding due to the rough roads. Conditions, however, will be much improved when the rest of the Lincoln highway from Frankfort to Joliet is paved.

MOVE TO LOCKPORT

Misses Helen and Minnie Eggers, who have been residents of Mokena over five years, moved Monday to Lockport, where they will make their home with their brother William. They sold their home in Mokena to Barney Hostert, recently. They came here with their mother from Manhattan township. Their many friends here regret to see them leave their midst, but wish them much happiness in their new home.

DANCE AT MOKENA NOV. 29

A dance will be held at the Hatch hall on Thanksgiving eve, Nov. 29th. Everyone is invited to come out for a good time.

MRS. H. CRAIG AND DAUGHTER DIE SUDDENLY

Mrs. Gilbert Sayers, formerly Miss Viola Hollstein, now residing north of Mokena, received a letter from Prof. H. A. Craig of Villa Grove, Ill., saying that Mrs. Craig died, a week before, from malarial typhoid, and his daughter, Eleanor, aged 12 years, died the same week of diphtheria. The letter was brief, and did not give further particulars. Prof. Craig is well known as the former principal of the Frankfort public school, and his many friends here deeply sympathize with him in his hour of great bereavement.

FREEDOM FROM
LAXATIVESDiscovery by Scientists Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent medical authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Medical authorities have found that the gentle lubricating action of Nujol most closely resembles that of Nature's own lubricant. As Nujol is not a laxative it cannot gripe. It is in no sense a medicine. And like pure water it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is prescribed by physicians; used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today.—Advertisement.

All the evening I was watching and listening with her eyes and her ears everything he did, everything he said. I so wanted Mother to like him! I so wanted Mother to see how really fine and splendid and noble he was. But that evening—Why couldn't he stop talking about the prizes he'd won, and the big racing car he'd just ordered for next summer? There was nothing fine and splendid and noble about that. And were his finger nails always so dirty?

Why, Mother would think—Mother did not stay in the room all the time; but she was in more or less often to watch the game; and at half-past nine she brought in some little cakes and lemonade as a surprise. I thought it was lovely; but I could have shaken Paul when he pretended to be afraid of it, and asked Mother if there was a stick in it.

The idea—Mother! A stick! I just knew Mother wouldn't like that. But if she didn't, she never showed a thing in her face. She just smiled, and said no, there wasn't any stick in it; and passed the cakes.

When he had gone I remember I didn't like to meet Mother's eyes, and I didn't ask her how she liked Paul Mayhew. I kept right on talking fast about something else. Some way, I didn't want Mother to talk then, for fear of what she would say.

And Mother didn't say anything about Paul Mayhew—then. But only a few days later she told me to invite him again to the house (this time to a chafing-dish supper), and to ask Carrie Heywood and Fred Small, too.

We had a beautiful time, only again Paul Mayhew didn't "show off" at all in the way I wanted him to—though he most emphatically "showed off" in his way! It seemed to me that he bragged even more about himself and his belongings than he had before. And I didn't like at all the way he ate his food. Why, Father didn't eat like that—with such a noisy mouth, and such a rattling of the silverware!

And so it went—wise mother that she was! Far from prohibiting me to have anything to do with Paul Mayhew, she let me see all I wanted to of him, particularly in my own home. She let me go out with him, properly chaperoned, and she never, by word or manner, hinted that she didn't admire his conceit and braggadocio.

And it all came out exactly as I suspect she had planned from the beginning. When Paul Mayhew asked to be my escort to the class reception in June, I declined with thanks, and immediately afterward told Fred Small I would go with him. But even when I told Mother nonchalantly, and with carefully averted eyes, that I was going to the reception with Fred Small—even then her pleasant "Well, that's good!" conveyed only cheery mother interest; nor did a hasty glance into her face discover so much as a lifted eyebrow to hint, "I thought you'd come to your senses sometime!"

Wise little mother that she was! In the days and weeks that followed (though nothing was said) I detected a subtle change in certain matters, however. And as I look back at it now, I am sure I can trace its origin to my "affair" with Paul Mayhew. Evidently Mother had no intention of running the risk of any more courtships; also evidently she intended to know who my friends were. At all events, the old Anderson mansion soon became the rendezvous of all the boys and girls of my acquaintance. And such good times as we had, with Mother always one of us, and ever proposing something new and interesting!

And because boys—not a boy, but boys—were as free to come to the house as were girls, they soon seemed to me as commonplace and matter-of-course and free from sentimental interest as were the girls.

Again, wise little mother! But, of course, even this did not prevent my falling in love with some one older than myself, some one quite outside of my own circle of intimates.

My especial attack of this kind came to me when I was barely eighteen, the spring I was being graduated from the Andersonville High school. And the visible embodiment of my adoration was the head master, Mr. Harold Hartshorn, a handsome, clean-shaven, well-set-up man of (I should judge) thirty-five years of age, rather grave, a little stern, and very dignified.

But how I adored him! How I hung upon his every word, his every glance! How I maneuvered to win from him a few minutes' conversation on a Latin verb or a French translation! How I thrilled if he bestowed upon me one of his infrequent smiles! How I grieved over his stern aloofness!

By the end of a month I had evolved this: his stern aloofness meant that he had been disappointed in love! his melancholy was loneliness—his heart was breaking. How I longed to help, to heal, to cure! How I thrilled at the thought of the love and companionship I could give him somewhere in a rose-embowered cottage far from the madding crowd! (He boarded at the Andersonville hotel alone now.) If only he could see it as I saw it. If only by some sign or token he could know of the warm love that was his but for the asking! Could he not see that no longer need he pine alone and unappreciated in the Andersonville hotel? Why, in just a few weeks I was to be through school. And then—

On the night before commencement Mr. Harold Hartshorn ascended our front steps, rang the bell, and called for my father. I knew because I was upstairs in my room over the front door; and I saw him come up the walk and heard him ask for Father.

Oh, joy! Oh, happy day! He knew. He had seen it as I saw it. He had come to gain Father's permission, that he might be a duly accredited suitor for my hand!

During the next ecstatic ten minutes, with my hand pressed against my wildly beating heart, I planned my wedding dress, selected with care and discrimination my trousseau, furnished the rose-embowered cottage far from the madding crowd—and wondered why Father did not send for me. Then the slam of the screen door downstairs sent me to the window, a sickening terror within me.

Was he going—without seeing me, his future bride? Impossible!

Father and Mr. Harold Hartshorn stood on the front steps below, talking. In another minute Mr. Harold Hartshorn had walked away, and Father had turned back on to the piazza.

As soon as I could control my shaking knees, I went downstairs. Father was in his favorite rocking-chair. I advanced slowly. I did not sit down.

"Was that Mr. Hartshorn?" I asked, trying to keep the shake out of my voice.

"Yes."

"Mr. H-Hartshorn," I repeated stupidly.

"Yes. He came to see me about the Downer place," nodded Father. "He wants to rent it for next year."

"To rent it—the Downer place!" (The Downer place was no rose-embowered cottage far from the madding crowd! Why, it was big, and brick, and right next to the hotel! I didn't want to live there.)

"Yes—for his wife and family. He's going to bring them back with him next year," explained Father.

"His wife and family!" I can imagine about how I gasped out those four words.

"Yes. He has five children, I believe, and—"

But I had fled to my room.

After all, my recovery was rapid. I was in love with love, you see; not with Mr. Harold Hartshorn. Besides, the next year I went to college. And it was while I was at college that I met Jerry.

Jerry was the brother of my college friend, Helen Weston. Helen's elder sister was a senior in that same college, and was graduated at the close of my freshman year. The father, mother and brother came on to the graduation. And that is where I met Jerry.

If it might be called meeting him. He lifted his hat, bowed, said a polite nothing with his lips, and an indifferent "Oh, some friend of Helen's," with his eyes, and turned to a radiant blonde senior at my side.

And that was all—for him. But for me—

All that day I watched him whenever opportunity offered; and I suspect that I took care that opportunity offered frequently. I was fascinated. I had never seen any one like him before. Tall, handsome, brilliant, at perfect ease, he plainly dominated every group of which he was a part. Toward him every face was turned—yet he never seemed to know it. (Whatever his faults, Jerry is not conceited. I will give him credit for that!) To me he did not speak again that day. I am not sure that he even looked at me. If he did there must still have been in his eyes only the "Oh, some friend of Helen's," that I had seen at the morning introduction.

I did not meet him again for nearly a year; but that did not mean that I did not hear of him. I wonder if Helen ever noticed how often I used to get her to talk of her home and her family life; and how interested I was in her gallery of portraits on the mantel—there were two fine ones of her brother there.

Helen was very fond of her brother. I soon found that she loved to talk about him—if she had a good listener. Needless to say she had a very good one in me.

Jerry was an artist, it seemed. He was twenty-eight years old, and already he had won no small distinction. Prizes, medals, honorable mention, and a special course abroad—all these Helen told me about. She told me, too, about the wonderful success he had just had with the portrait of a certain New York society woman. She said that it was just going to "make" Jerry; that he could have anything he wanted now—anything.

I saw Jerry myself during the Easter vacation of my second year in college. Helen invited me to go home with her, and Mother wrote that I might go. Helen had been home with me for the Christmas vacation, and Mother and Father liked her very much. There was no hesitation, therefore, in their consent that I should visit Helen at Easter time. So I went.

Helen lived in New York. Their home was a Fifth Avenue mansion with nine servants, four automobiles and two chauffeurs. Naturally such a scale of living was entirely new to me, and correspondingly fascinating. From the elaborately uniformed footman that opened the door for me to the awesome French maid who "did" my hair, I adored them all, and moved as in a dream of enchantment. Then came Jerry home from a week-end's trip—and I forgot everything else.

I knew from the minute his eyes looked into mine that whatever I had been before, I was now certainly no mere "Oh, some friend of Helen's." I was (so his eyes said) "a deucedly pretty girl, and one well worth cultivating." Whereupon he began at once to do the "cultivating."

When I went back to college he held my promise that if he could gain the consent of Father and Mother, he might put the engagement ring on my finger.

Back at college, alone in my own room, I drew a long breath, and began to think. It was the first chance I had had, for even Helen now had become Jerry—by reflection.

The more I thought, the more frightened, dismayed, and despairing I became. In the clear light of calm, sane reasoning, it was all so absurd, so impossible! What could I have been thinking of? I must forget Jerry.

I pictured him in Andersonville, in my own home. I tried to picture him talking to Father, to Mother.

Absurd. What had Jerry to do with learned treatises on stars, or with the humdrum, everyday life of a stupid, small town? For that matter, what had Father and Mother to do with dancing and motoring and painting society queens' portraits? Nothing.

Plainly, even if Jerry, for the sake of the daughter, liked Father and Mother, Father and Mother certainly would not like Jerry. That was certain.

Of course I cried myself to sleep that night. That was to be expected. Jerry was the world; and the world was lost. There was nothing left except, perhaps, a few remnants and pieces, scarcely worth the counting—excepting, of course, Father and Mother. But one could not always have one's father and mother. There would come a time when—

Jerry's letter came the next day—by special delivery. He had gone straight home from the station and begun to write to me. (How like Jerry that was—particularly the special-delivery stamp!) The most of his letter, aside from the usual lover's rhapsodies, had to do with plans for the summer—what we would do together at the Westons' summer cottage in Newport. He said he should run up to Andersonville early—very early; just as soon as I was back from college, in fact, so that he might meet Father and Mother, and put that ring on my finger.

MAC ABROAD

"You have heard," said Daddy, "of Mac, the Airedale dog?"

"Oh yes," said Nick.

"Indeed we have," said Nancy. "Two little girls named Mildred and Janet own Mac, don't they?"

"He especially belongs to Mildred, doesn't he?" asked Nick. "Isn't he the dog you mean, daddy, 'he belongs to Mildred.' Of course Janet is Mildred's sister and she is like an aunt of Mac's while Mildred is like a mother."

"Mac says that M.A.C. is the correct way to spell his name, though sometimes it is spelled Mack. But Mac is correct, though we have called him Mack. But it has made no real difference."

"But we will call him Mac from now on. Of course I don't suppose I should say that we have called him Mack and that now we must call him Mac for both sound just the same!"

"Instead I should say that now we will spell his name Mac though we have spelled it Mack. It sounds the same either way."

"As you know Mac is a beautiful Airedale dog, just as good and fine and wonderful as a dog can be—and you know that is pretty good and fine and wonderful!"

"A little while ago Mildred's mother and daddy said that they were going to live abroad for a year or so."

"Mac looked a little worried at this for a moment but he was soon all right."

"For he knew that he was going to go too, and that was all he cared about. He knew from the way they acted that they were not going to leave him behind."

"That was quite, quite plain. He could tell that perfectly. There were great times getting ready to go, with the packing of trunks and the putting away of things and the saying good-by to friends."

"Mac thought his tail would have to go to bed all by itself after he got on board the ship for it was so weary from so much wagging."

"How much Mac did wag his tail!"

"Well, they all went aboard the ship to sail for Europe. Mac and his family and the trunks—all went! And Mac felt very proud to think he was going across the Atlantic ocean."

"Everything was very strange and new to him when he first got to Paris. Of course he was with his own dear, beloved family."

"He cared more about being with them than anything else. He would rather have been in a strange country with them than in his most familiar home town without them."

"They explained so much to him, too, and the little home they had soon became like home to Mac too."

"At first it had all seemed very, very strange."

"Well, soon Mac began to learn French. They spoke to him in French and he understood."

"He learned to obey in French too. He would be told to lie down and he would lie down and do all his tricks in answer to French orders."

"Well, he was quite proud of himself, for it was something to learn a new language so quickly that he had never heard before in his life."

"Of course he wanted to be thought a bright dog and he knew that all bright dogs could understand a language after they were in the country for a time where that language was spoken."

"And Mac was a bright dog. Oh yes, he got so he understood French perfectly and when the family were talking in French he would show that he understood."

"Mildred wrote to her friends in America and told them how much Mac liked French life."

"He did not have as many dog friends in France, she said, as he had had at home, but that he was contented."

"And she said Mildred wrote to her friends."

"Mac's friends miss him as they miss Mac's family, and they are eager to see him when he comes back again."

"For he will have been such a traveled dog. He is going to spend the summer traveling. Think of that! And he is going to seaside places in a foreign land, and see, oh, so much of the world!"

"For the family would not enjoy going away without Mac, and Mac says that is the way to have one's family feel!"

HAD FEAST OF SPANISH STEW

Brave Burghers of Dutch Town of Leyden Held Thanksgiving in 1574.

Governor Bradford Has Testified That the Pilgrims Followed "the Laudable Custom of Holland"—Proper Tribute to Red Men.

"After the laudable custom of Holland," is Bradford's own description of one of the many functions and even institutions introduced into America and set to work at Plymouth. There was nothing exclusive or selfish about these beginners of the American Thanksgiving day of 1621. They made no profession of originality or the invention of anything new. They were as generous in their acknowledgment of what the Indians furnished for their feast as they were to their former hosts for their "courteous entreaty" received while in the Dutch republic.

The red men taught the white how to cultivate maize, to make sugar from maple sap, to visualize the clams by treading them up and out of the sea beach and, not least for economic success, to raise tobacco. "Dear Lady Nicotine" enabled the Pilgrims to send as a present to their Dutch friends on Manhattan a fine sample of fuel for the pipe. In fact, tobacco was their first paying crop for export.

It is true that Washington Irving and common tradition here distort chronology and history for legend, but it is Bradford's record that in the North the Pilgrims were the first raisers of tobacco. In all probability, besides the American Thanksgiving, it was they who introduced the after-dinner luxury of the cigar.

It is highly probable also that, following the turkey and possibly cranberries, and certainly without regard to cuticle red or white, the feast ended in a smoker, followed by competitive target practice between masters of the bow and the blunderbuss. These pious folks followed another and very laudable gastronomic Dutch custom which during their ten years' stay in Leyden they had seen and enjoyed. The besieging Spaniards in 1574 were considerate enough to furnish Leyden with an occasion for Thanksgiving day. This was fixed at the very sensible date of October 4, instead of a Thursday in late November. After William the Silent had cut the dikes at Delfshaven and sent messages of cheer by the carrier pigeons to the besieged, the Zealand Water Beggars drove their cannon boats up to the city walls, over which they tossed loaves and dried herring. These brave rescuers wore on their caps a silver crescent, called in Dutch a Half Moon, with an inscription showing preference for the Turk rather than the Spaniard for their cause. After this symbol of valor, daring and freedom was the ship of Henry Hudson named.

It was the enterprising boy Gijbert Cornellison who climbed out early in the morning over the wall to find that the Spaniards had evacuated every one of their camps and their 54 forts. Over the fires was stewing the huts-puts, Anglicized as hodge-podge. It was this ragout of meat and vegetables smoking hot but still untasted which furnished a free dinner on October 4, the day of deliverance. It made a fine addition to the dry rations brought by the victorious Beggars. The exact spot of the initial rescue and loaf tossing is marked and the original water gate and masonry are still kept in repair. Near by stands the modern Hall of Archives, in which are more contemporary documents of the Pilgrims, maids, swains, fathers and mothers, with their signatures, than in all the British isles.

At once the Dutch made October 4 a Thanksgiving day by going to church. Both the date and its significance are still celebrated, with the eating not of turkey and cranberries but of the Spanish stew. After church all the brides and bridegrooms of the previous 12 months ride in a gala procession of carriages through the city of Leyden. In New Netherlands Thanksgiving day was also a regular function announced by proclamation and observed in both public and private life.

The Coat of Arms

November has a coat of arms. No king's could grander be; It beats the finest specimens Of ancient heraldry. Upon a shield of pumpkin pie In hues of brown and gold Are lozenges of cranberry sauce And chicken casserole.

A roasted turkey couchant on a tablecloth is seen, With quarterings of potato mashed, And celery white and green, And apples red, and pretty girls The flour for crullers sieving, And at the top the legend scrolled In letters bold, "Thanksgiving."—Minna Irving in New York Sun.

Did these newcomers to Plymouth get used to the biting off of grain that grew on a cob which was not edible? Did they hasten their incisors too deep in the cob, as is done at first by most English tasters of the luscious corn? As for the cranberry, who of them visualized the future to behold an American annual crop of a million bushels? Who could foresee the bogs of four states blushing with the crimson globules, a small library of literature concerning the berry, and even an association of breeders and defenders of this indigenous delicacy?

And what of the turkey which furnished a poultry yard at the very doors of the Pilgrims? Unafraid of man, these majestic birds came with and without invitation. And what of the friendly competition between the Dutch oven which the immigrants brought over and the Algonquin cooking hole? No doubt the folks of both red and white skins were strenuous rivals to produce the toothsome and savory roast. Yet who but a bold hunter in 1922 ever sees this original American king of birds? The domestic fowl of today is but a pale copy of the magnificent lord of the forest, with its sheeny iridescence of breast feathers and the combs of its neck and head changing when erect with excitement or fear. It is true that the modern bird of November struts in ostentatious splendor and with a vanity that at times seems very nearly human. Its display of the exultant passion of victory over rivals reminds one of a Wall Street boss of finance or a lady that is queen of the ball. Is it any wonder that Benjamin Franklin pleaded eloquently that the American wild turkey should be adopted as our national emblem and the symbol of our prosperity rather than the eagle, beloved of monarch and autocrat? Like maize, called Turkey wheat, this glorious fowl got the name it bears because the origin of all novelties was in that era ascribed to Asia, but unlike the cereal grain it still lacks an appropriate name.

Thanks, then, to the Pilgrim Fathers for their discovery of the food resources and gastronomic possibilities of the American wilderness, and quite as much to the Pilgrim Mothers who added deliciousness to the native culinary contributions. They certainly did continue in the New world most of the good things of the Old. Nor in this relation of things must we forget the Indian. In fact, the more we have learned of late of so-called civilized warfare and the methods of propagating Hunnish culture, the more do we respect the red man.

Reverently may we add that the profound faith of these pioneers in the ancient promises recorded in the eighth chapter of Deuteronomy, concerning the Promised Land wherein they should "eat bread without scarceness," was vindicated. They made the inspired prophecy valid by their industry and perseverance, and their descendants may well follow their example in these days.

Chef Had Plenty But He Could Hardly Eat

Even an expert chef for an up-to-date restaurant, with everything heart could wish in the eating line and the skill to prepare it in the most appetizing manner, finds life miserable and work a burden with his appetite gone and his health all broken up on account of stomach trouble.

According to his own statement, such had been the case for two years with William Lackey, 865 North Wells St., Chicago, Ill., chef at a popular North Clark St. restaurant, who says he recently found relief by taking Tanlac.

Mr. Lackey now boasts of a "wonderful appetite and a stomach that digests such things as ham and eggs, corned beef and cabbage, and rich pastries, foods that would have almost put me out of commission before I took Tanlac."

"Before I ran across this medicine," said he, "I was having to lay off from my work for a week at a time just on account of the numerous ills I suffered from indigestion. But when I tell you I have gained fifteen pounds, eat and digest anything, and am on the job every day feeling fine, you may know how I appreciate Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.—Advertisement.

My most embarrassing moment was at a family gathering where a lot of cousins, sisters and half-sisters were present. We had not met in several years and there was a little jealousy among us.

I heard them mention the name Marie several times, so finally asked: "Who is Marie? Is that Mary, with her name styled up to Marie?"

A sarcastic old aunt replied: "Yes, Maggie, just as yours is styled up to Marguerite."—Chicago Tribune.

SIGHS FOR REAL SUCCOTASH

Oldtimer Deplores Fact That the Dainty Seems to Have Gone Out of Fashion.

When I was a boy I was very fond of succotash, and down in New England years ago we were told that it was made as the Indians made it, just pole beans and corn boiled together, and maybe it wasn't good!

In traveling around the country at various hotels I often ask for succotash especially at this season of the year when the beans and corn are just right, but what offerings are placed before me under the name of succotash!

In many parts of the country lima beans are used in making succotash, but I don't think the Indians knew anything about lima beans.

Succotash, johnnycake, hoecake, apple turnovers, frizzled beef, do you remember them?—From a Letter to the New York Herald.

Airing Her Secret.

One evening I was to have a young man caller. As I didn't have a new dress and couldn't wear my old one, I finally succeeded in borrowing sister's.

I was all ready and sitting in the parlor when he arrived. He at once remarked about my new dress. Everything went lovely until my little sister came in and said, "Oh, did I tell you you could wear her dress?"—Exchange.

Woman Annoyed When Male Escort Got the Benefit and She Received the Abuse.

MADE HIM FEEL THE COLD
Young Man's Excellent Exemplification of the Power of Mind Over Matter.

A woman had annoyed many people who were waiting in line for tickets on a Saturday afternoon at a railway station. The woman had come up at the other side of the window, and though she had been told to get in line, she had put down her money for two tickets and had obtained them at once.

"Just like a woman," muttered some of the men in line. But the woman turned to the man she had just joined and burst forth audibly:

"I don't think it's fair, Jim. You make me do that horrid trick of trying to beat the line because you say men never do such things. And women get the abuse. But I bet that every woman who does that has a man somewhere in the crowd who has insisted that she hurry."

Paper for Dark Room.

Modern photographic plates are so sensitive that often a screen of red glass in the dark room is not sufficient to prevent fogging. A French photographic expert gives the following prescription for making a paper screen, which is 50 per cent more effective than red glass: Take unsized paper and dip it thoroughly in 100 cubic centimeters of water containing six grams of tartrazine. Then pass it over blotting paper and dry it. To render the coloring matter more adherent, a little gum arabic may be added to the solution.

He who wants content can't find an easy chair.

The power of mind over matter has been discovered since mankind found itself.

Epictetus, the Roman slave, knew much about it; so did Marcus Aurelius; Bishop Berkeley of England had his theory; in our day and country it has been made much of by many persons. The latest advocate is Emile Cote, the French exponent of autosuggestion.

Examples of this influence may be discovered anywhere.

In an elevator, for instance, two young men were discussing the weather.

"Pretty cold this morning," said one. "Not so cold," declared the other, throwing out his chest.

"It was 36 degrees by my thermometer," said the other.

"Gee!" shivered the second. "If I'd a known that I'd a put on my overcoat."

Counter-Threat.

Little Tommy Boggs and the boy next door were having a row in the back yard. The neighbor had thrown a stone at Tommy, and the latter was making divers threats. "If you throw another stone at me," he finally yelled, "I'll set my dog on you."

"You will, will you?" retorted the neighbor. "Just you come into my yard and I'll sick my mother on you!"—Philadelphia Press.

If there were no timorous mortals to prey upon the pessimist would starve to death.

How much sleep do you need?

It isn't so much a question of the number of hours you spend in bed, as it is of the quality of the sleep you get. Is your sleep sound and restful, or is it fitful and unrefreshing?

One common cause of wakefulness at night is overstimulation from coffee drinking. For coffee contains caffeine which irritates the nerves and frequently leads to insomnia.

If you have any idea that coffee keeps you awake at night, or makes you nervous, make a change from coffee to delicious Postum.

This pure cereal beverage contains nothing that can harm health, and its flavor is much like coffee. In fact, many people prefer Postum for its flavor alone.

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared; made by boiling fully 20 minutes.

Postum FOR HEALTH

The two forms of Postum are equally delicious; and the cost is only about 1/2c per cup.

AUTOCRACY OR DEMOCRACY?

We Don't Want the Former So Vote "NO" On Dec. 12th

Do you want a democracy or an autocracy? You can have either one or the other by voting on the proposed new constitution on December 12th. By voting "yes" you will be voting in an autocratic power which will be as bad if not worse than that of the despotic kings of old.

The News-Bulletin urges all its readers to think this matter over seriously, and then vote "no" on the proposition.

The Illinois Miner has so well covered the subject that we here-with quote a portion of a lengthy article showing up some of the undesirable features of the proposed constitution, which favor the rich man and monopoly to the detriment of the farmer and the workingman:

TAXES

It is agreed on all sides that the main reason which brought about the calling of a constitutional convention was the widespread dissatisfaction with the rigid and inflexible uniformity provision of the present constitution as effecting the powers of taxation. Despite the fact that some years ago the voters of Illinois, by an overwhelming majority, decided in favor of extending the power of the State legislature in the matter of taxation so as to permit classification of property for taxation purposes, the constitutional convention adopted the precise language (Sec. 141) of that part of the present taxation section against which the people complained. Thus no relief can be given to the farmer or home owner. In a section referring to intangible property, (Sec. 142) classification of so-called intangibles (bonds, mortgages, notes, etc.) for purposes of taxation, is permitted by the proposed new constitution, provided the incomes derived from such property is taxed instead of taxing on the basis of valuation. Thus, in effect, is building a sort of a fence around the very class of property which has, up to the present time, been illegally withheld from taxation by its owners. Those holders of such property who have so long escaped taxation will not voluntarily bring forth their hidden paper for the scrutiny of the tax assessors. The slight modification of the uniformity rule as made by the section on intangible property will be of practically no value as a means of reducing taxes. The article on revenue has plainly been drafted for the purpose of safeguarding large incomes from taxation, and is involved with so much detail that it will doubtless be many years before the courts can determine all its meaning.

The charge that the revenue article was drafted for the purpose of protecting large incomes from taxation is proved by the language of the sections authorizing the taxation of net incomes (Sec. 148) and limiting exemption (Sec. 145) in the case of wage earners and salaried workers. No income tax can be levied against the huge incomes of the great corporations under the proposed new constitution unless the meager earnings of the worker be also taxed. An arbitrary limited exemption of $1,000 for the head of a family, plus $200 for each child under the age of 16 years, is all that is allowed the man of family. In case of other persons, the exemption to the wage earner is limited to $500. Thus no law providing for the taxing of huge incomes of great mercantile corporations would be constitutional unless that law also provides for a tax on the income of $12 a week sales girls. High school attendance is to be discouraged by reason of the fact that no allowance is made for children over 16 and under 18. Dependent relatives are given no consideration. A clause alleged to have been designed for the purpose of preventing double taxation (Sec. 145) provides that deductions may be made to compensate for other taxes paid on the property from which the income to be taxed was derived. The meaning of this can best be described by the following illustration. On a street which has been paved during the year a factory and a cottage of a workman are on opposite sides of the street. In computing its net income at the end of the year the factory may deduct the money it paid for its share of the street paving. The workingman is not permitted to make any such deduction. If the factory is damaged by fire, the owner may charge the repair cost to expenses in computing his net income, but if the cottage suffers a similar damage, no deduction is allowed in the case of the workingman. The tax article of the proposed new constitution is a snare and a delusion, and in some respects borders on the ridiculous. Under the guise of promoting forestry and forest culture (Sec. 146) provisions have actually been made whereby land speculators can escape taxation, and under another section (Sec. 57) may even receive financial aid from the State while doing so.

BANKS

A section of the proposed new constitution which prohibits the State from assuming any liability for any banking business (Sec. 49) is designed to prevent the State legislature from enacting laws to protect bank depositors. Its purpose is clearly to prevent the passage of legislation in Illinois already enacted in several States which provides for guaranty funds to be deposited with the State authorities for the protection of bank depositors.

OTHER DANGEROUS PROVISIONS

The Bill of Rights, the most precious heritage of the common people, has been seriously mutilated by the constitutional convention. One section has been used to convey limitless power to the judges. Another section (Sec. 8) has been changed so as to empower the attorney general to seize and hold citizens at will by merely filing information without even being required to show probable cause in a court of record. The section which now provides the right of bail has been changed (Sec. 7) so as to leave that right entirely to the discretion of the judge. Through the striking out of one word in the sentences on the right of trial by jury—the word "heretofore," [Sec. 5.] the supreme court, under its rule-making power in another part of the constitution, is given power [Sec. 98] to authorize judges to intrude themselves upon the juries and to alter the methods of jury trial in many respects.

HAS GEM IN HER TUMMY

Elizabeth Walsh of East Syracuse, N. Y., had an operation about two years ago in which her tonsils and adenoids were removed. The surgeon soon discovered a diamond had been lost from the setting of her ring. A short time ago Elizabeth had a severe pain in her side. She was taken to the same hospital and X-rayed. The doctor's diamond was discovered. He will get it back again as another operation will be necessary to relieve the little girl of the pain which is caused by the diamond shown by the X-ray as having taken up an abiding place near the appendix.

NEWBERRY QUILTS THE U. S. SENATE

Solon Declares It Is Futile to Hold His Seat Under "Persecution."

SUBMITS HIS RESIGNATION

Michigan Senator in Letter to Gov. Groesbeck Expresses Opinion That He Would Be Hampered by Partisan Political Controversies.

Washington, Nov. 20.—Truman H. Newberry of Michigan, whose right to a place in the senate has been a subject of long and bitter controversy, has submitted his resignation with a request that it become effective immediately.

In a letter to Gov. A. J. Groesbeck of Michigan, made public here, Mr. Newberry said he had been impelled to retire voluntarily because of the defeat of his Republican colleague, Senator Townsend, in the election of Nov. 7. The turn of events, he said, would make it "futile" for him to attempt to continue his public service, since he continually would be "hampered by partisan political persecution."

Reviewing the outstanding features of the controversy which grew out of his election four years ago over Henry Ford, his Democratic opponent, he declared his right to a seat in the senate had been "fully confirmed." He added that if in the future there seemed to be opportunities for public service he would not hesitate to offer himself to his state and country.

The resignation brings to an end a fight which already has made political history and which it appeared would be resumed early in the session.

IRON RULE FOR GERMANY

British Will Back France to the Limit on Reparations, Says Dispatch.

Paris, Nov. 20.—Sir John Bradbury, British member of the reparations commission, received instructions from London to support the French reparations claims against Germany to the utmost limit.

This was Great Britain's fulfillment of Lord Curzon's promise to Premier Poincare of British support for France in making Germany buck up and pay. The promise was given in return for hearty French support of peace terms in the Near East satisfactory to the British empire.

UNEMPLOYED GO TO LONDON

Hunger Marchers From All Parts of England and Scotland Arrive in British Capital.

London, Nov. 20.—Unemployed "hunger marchers," who traveled about to London from all parts of England and Scotland to lay their demand for state maintenance before the prime minister, held a vigorous demonstration in Trafalgar square. The attitude of Mr. Bonar Law in refusing to receive the deputation last week was denounced and they declared they would not budge from the capital until their representatives had had a personal interview with the head of the government.

FENG'S ARMY SEIZES PEKING

Finance Minister of China Held on $350,000 Bribery Charge—Capital Under Martial Law.

Peking, Nov. 20.—Peking is in the throes of a new coup d'etat following the arrest of Finance Minister Lo Wen Kan on a $350,000 bribery charge. Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Necessary Preparation.
"Why are you studying all these foreign languages?" "I'm thinking of living in New York."

Cuticura Soothes Baby Rashes.
That itch and burn, by hot baths of Cuticura Soap followed by gentle anointings of Cuticura Ointment. Nothing better, purer, sweeter, especially if a little of the fragrant Cuticura Talcum is dusted on at the finish. 25c each.—Advertisement.

If some men are utterly just it may be asking too much to insist on brotherly love from them.

RADIO

HOW AN INDOOR LOOP ANTENNA IS BUILT

Has Advantages in Size and Directional Properties but Picks Up Little Energy.

If you live in a section of the country infested with radio fans who send "CQ" or send some station call by the hour while you are trying to catch the music from a broadcasting station, a loop antenna may help solve your difficulty. Or if you live in an apartment or a very congested section of the city where there is no room to erect an antenna, or where the land-lord objects, a loop antenna can be used in lieu of an outdoor one. Let it be thoroughly understood, however, that the energy picked up by a loop antenna only approaches that of an outdoor antenna when the physical dimensions of the loop antenna approach those of the outdoor antenna. Don't wind a hundred feet of wire on a "Mother's Oats" box and expect a loop antenna so constructed to give the same signal strength as the same hundred feet of wire stretched outside as a single-wire outdoor antenna.

The two advantages of a loop antenna, then, are its small physical dimensions and its directional properties. The most serious disadvantage of the loop antenna is the small amount of energy picked up. If loop antenna is used for the reception of close, high-powered stations, ordinary regenerative receivers with audio-frequency amplifiers will give good results. However, if a long-distance reception of medium and low power transmitting stations is desired, then radio-frequency amplification must be used.

There has been placed on the market a radio-frequency amplifying transformer, type UC-1714, to be used in conjunction with Radiotrons type UC-201. Such a combination is claimed to give an audibility amplification of 20 per stage. A loop antenna with a two or three stage audio-frequency amplifier, employing type UC-714 coupling transformers in conjunction with one's present set, will give practically the same signal strength that is now being received from the outdoor antenna.

Though a loop antenna of larger section and fewer turns would be more directional, the antenna described here will give good results for its size, and is small enough to be easily transported. The material required for the two-loop antenna is as follows:

Two strips of wood, 5½ feet long by 2 inches wide by 1 inch thick. Straight, close-grained wood should be used in order to guard against warping.

One hundred feet of No. 14 bare antenna wire, preferably stranded phosphor bronze.

Four pieces of bakelite, 2 inches square by 3-16 inch thick.

Four small brass angles of the type that can be purchased in the 5 and 10 cent stores.

One dozen 1½ inch long 6-32 brass machine screws with nuts.

Notch the two pieces of wood in the center and at the ends, as shown in Figure III. Then with a No. 25 drill bore three holes in each piece of wood, as shown. The notches in the center part of the two pieces of wood should allow the two pieces to be fitted together to form a perfect right angle.

The notches should be just wide enough so that one of the four 2-inch square pieces of bakelite will just fit. After the notches have been checked to see that they are of the proper size, fit the two strips of wood together, putting a little furniture glue in the joint and bolting it fast with a long bolt. The brass angles should now be fitted in the corners of the joint to make the two strips of wood form a right angle. To prevent warping and for the sake of appearance, the wood-work should be given several coats of shellac.

The natural period of this loop antenna is approximately 175 meters. To tune to wave lengths in excess of 175 meters, a 0.0005 microfarad condenser is shunted across the leads of the loop. The closed oscillating circuit formed by the loop and the shunt condenser can be connected by any detecting circuit as shown in Fig. I or can be used with radio-frequency amplifiers. When used with receiving sets employing a variocouple and two variometers, the loop is connected, and the shunt condenser is omitted. The tuning is accomplished by means of the grid variometer.

A loop antenna will pick up a maximum amount of energy when the transmitting station is in the plane of the loop, and a minimum amount of energy when the transmitting station is in a direction at right angles to the plane of the loop. In Fig. II, the loop will pick up a maximum amount of energy from Station A and a minimum amount from Station B.

Care must be taken in setting up a loop to see that it will not be shielded. The energy picked up by a loop antenna is small at best, especially if the loop is not oriented to its maximum position, and any reduction in received energy will decrease the signals below audibility. For example, don't set up a loop antenna inside a steel framed building or up in the attic directly under a well grounded metal roof.

Capacity effect due to the body of the operator is quite noticeable with a loop antenna. The operator must not get close to the loop or the capacity effect of his body will detune the oscillating circuit. While the loop is rather difficult to handle in some instances and can only be used to replace an outdoor antenna at a loss in received energy, its directional properties are very advantageous in the reduction of interference.

TIPS TO THE RADIOIST

The danger of stringing radio wires over light or power wires was demonstrated in New Jersey recently when a well-known citizen was shocked to death.

Radio distance lends enchantment. A writer says, "A great many amateurs prefer to hear a few discordant notes from 1,000 miles away than a wonderfully executed program from their own town."

Radio accomplishes some great and new thing every day. Now it has been found that old razor blades can be used in making condensers and another way to get rid of old blades is given to a grateful public.

Radio has gone to the dogs. A Hood River, Ore., paper describes a toy dog with his tail caught in a trap. Upon calling, "Here, Tige," the voice vibrations release the trap and the pup springs at you.

One of the latest inventions in the radio field is a filter that separates the telephone and telegraph waves. We shall look forward to the day when a filter will separate the good music from the bad and automatically send the latter to Urapus.

In boring or sawing wood, fiber, etc., soap is far better than oil. Also if screws are soaked with ordinary kitchen soap they will enter the wood easily without danger of ruining the head slots, and, moreover, they may be readily removed at any time.

Dr. Marconi lives a life of clock-work regularity upon his yacht. He breakfasts at 8 and tolerates no tardiness on the part of those dining with him. He is an indefatigable worker and holds himself in readiness to give personal attention to any radio matters that may come up, night or day.

Dean Dexter S. Kimball of Cornell university in a recent radio talk to engineers, made two important points: One, that a man can now say "I'll tell the world" without using slang; and the other, that the study of ether vibrations, upon which radio is based, is in its infancy, and the future promises even more than the development from manual signs to radio.

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 26

JESUS THE GREAT MISSIONARY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 8:1-39.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which is lost.—Luke 19:10.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Matt. 4:23; 9:35-38.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Brings a Little Girl Back to Life.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Great Missionary.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Meeting All Human Needs.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus the Ideal Missionary.

1. The Great Missionary's Field (vv. 1-3).

He went throughout every city and village. The true missionary goes to everybody, for all need the gospel.

1. His Message (v. 1). He preached the glad tidings of the kingdom of God. The gospel message is truly good tidings, for the great King is offering to rebellious sinners salvation through Jesus Christ.

2. His Helpers (v. 1). The twelve apostles were with Him. The missionary should utilize the help of others.

3. Supported by Saved Women (vv. 2, 3). Out of grateful hearts certain women who had experienced the saving power of the gospel ministered unto Jesus of their substance.

II. The Great Missionary Teaching (vv. 4-21).

1. The Parable of the Sower (vv. 4-21). (1) The sower—Jesus (see Matt. 13:27). (2) The seed—the Word of God (v. 11). (3) The kinds of ground (vv. 5-8). (a) Wayside (v. 5). This foot-trodden path pictures the hard-hearted upon which no impression can be made. The preached word finds no entrance, and Satan snatches it away as birds pick up the grain from the hard-beaten path. In such cases faith cannot spring up and result in salvation (v. 12). (b) Stony ground (v. 6). This is not stones mixed with earth, but a thin layer of earth on a ledge of rock. The seed falling upon such earth springs up quickly, but the plant soon dies when exposed to the sun. This pictures the hearer who receives with joy the message of the gospel, but when persecution and trials come because of following Christ he gives up and deserts the cause (v. 15). (c) Thorny ground (v. 7). This ground is good, but it has thorns growing in it. The seeds spring up, but the plant has no room to develop. This pictures the Christians who bear no Christian fruit because of being preoccupied with "cares, riches and pleasures" of this life (v. 14). (d) Good ground (v. 8). The seed here sprang up and bore fruit to the full measure. This pictures the honest heart which receives the gospel message and allows it to produce in its life a full harvest of grain (v. 15).

The application of this parable is found in verses 16-18.

2. Kinship with Jesus Christ (vv. 19-21). Jesus teaches here that there is a relationship to Him which is closer than the tie of blood.

III. The Great Missionary Doing Wonders (vv. 22-39).

1. Calming the Storm (vv. 22-25). (1) Jesus asleep (v. 23). While the disciples were sailing the ship the Master fell asleep. (2) The frightened disciples (vv. 23, 24). As their ships were filled with water the disciples awoke Jesus with their cry of peril. (3) Jesus rebuked the wind and water (v. 24). At His word there was a great calm. (4) Jesus rebuked the disciples (v. 25). He did not rebuke them for waking Him, but for their lack of faith.

2. Casting Out Demons (vv. 26-39). Demon-possession was in that day, and is today, an awful reality. (1) Jesus met by the demoniac (vv. 26-29). (2) Jesus' question (v. 30). The purpose of this question doubtless was to bring the real man to consciousness—to enable him to distinguish between the demon and himself. (3) The demons' request (vv. 31, 32). They asked permission to enter into a herd of swine. It seems that the demons have a dislike for disembodiment. The devil cannot act without Divine permission. (4) The request granted (vv. 32, 33). Just why this was done we do not know. Since Jesus did it we must believe that it was wise. (5) The effect upon the people (vv. 34-37). (a) The keepers of the swine went and made it known in the city and country. (b) The people made investigation. They saw the man clothed and in his right mind, and heard the testimony of those who had seen what was done. (c) Besought Jesus to depart from them. (d) Request of the man whom He healed (vv. 38, 39). He desired to be with Jesus. This was natural and right, but his responsibility was to go home and show them what great things God had done for him.

Pure Religion.
Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the widow and the fatherless in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world.—James 1:27.

Aiding the Weak.
We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves.—Romans 15:1.

The Wise Man.
A wise man will make more opportunities than he finds.—Bacon.

How to keep feed money out of the mud

Extensive tests prove that hogs fed on concrete feeding floors gain 80% more weight than hogs to which the same amount of feed is thrown on the ground. Isn't it time to stop throwing feed money into the mud?

You can easily build a good feeding floor at low cost with Marquette Cement. Figuring 15 sq. ft. for each hog, 150 sq. ft. of 4-in. floor for 10 hogs can be laid with only 13 sacks of cement, 1 cu. yd. of sand and 1½ cu. yds. of stone.

A curb on three sides of the floor will keep the feed where the hog can get it. One sack of Marquette Cement will build 4½ feet of curb, 4 in. higher than the floor and extending one foot in the ground. The above quantities are based on a 1:2:3 mix.

Marquette Cement will assure satisfaction on all your concrete work. See your Marquette dealer for construction details on any job you may have in mind.
